

Enterhealth to Open Addiction Recovery Center to Meet Growing Demand for Progressive Treatment

Enterhealth Recovery Center Opening in North Texas in Fall 2008

Dallas, Texas (May 16, 2008) – To meet growing demand for progressive addiction treatment and recovery support, Enterhealth is developing an addiction recovery center that will provide ongoing treatment, counseling and recovery for alcohol and drug addictions. Enterhealth’s progressive, comprehensive approach treats the ‘brain, body and soul.’ The privately-owned recovery center will be located north of the Dallas/Fort Worth metropolitan area and is scheduled to open this fall.

“Enterhealth’s progressive approach includes treatment that offers optional, cutting-edge medication therapies that treat the physical aspects of addiction, including cravings,” said Dr. Harold Urschel III, MD, Enterhealth’s chief medical strategist. “Counseling services focus on diagnosis and treatment of mental health issues that can contribute to addiction problems. Our ‘dual diagnosis’ approach allows the client to better manage the disease of addiction. Enterhealth’s program is designed to strengthen the ‘brain, body, and soul.’”

Enterhealth’s program will be personalized for each client, providing residential treatment services and outpatient support. The center’s safe, structured program will serve 16 clients with an industry-low 1:3 therapist-client ratio for as many days as clinically determined for each client.

“Enterhealth’s philosophy is that effective treatment depends on an integrated treatment approach that recognizes that addiction is a disease,” said David Kniffen Jr., president of Enterhealth. “Our focus and commitment is to provide the most effective and progressive treatment and support possible to help people through every stage of addiction throughout their lifetimes.”

Enterhealth’s addiction program also integrates continuous, online support through Enterhealth.com, which enables clients to reinforce the life skills and concepts learned during treatment upon returning home. Enterhealth will also teach the client’s family and support system how to integrate these important concepts into their lives as well, thereby enhancing each client’s chances for success.
